TO PUT DAWES
PLAN THROUGH

America Is Represented By Ambassador and Observer With Four Advisers

MACDONALD IS CHAIRMAN

Conference Adjourns Until Thursday After Appointing Officials

Paris.—The interallied conference for the purpose of making effective the Dawes plan for German reparations, assembled at 11 o'clock Wednesday at the foreign office. American Ambassador Kellogg and Colonel James A. Logan Jr., the American observer with the four advisers and a number of secretaries.

Formally welcoming the delegates to the conference, Prime Minister MacDonald made special reference to the presence of the Americans. He noted they were not present as full delegates but he took their presence as indicating the good will and cooperation of the United States in the effort to make the Dawes plan effective.

Ambassador Kellogg, replying to Mr. MacDonald's welcome, said the American government and people believed the adoption of the Dawes report would be the first great step toward stabilization of Europe.

Opening the formal proceedings of the conference, Premier MacDonald briefly surveyed the reparations problem, urging the importance of putting the Dawes report into effect as a whole without change of details.

SEEK GERMAN UNITY
It would be the business of the conference, Mr. MacDonald said, to create conditions for the working of the Dawes report, the first being the fiscal and economic unity of Germany, and the second, adequate security for prospective investors in the loan for Germany.

One great merit of the experts' work, continued the premier, was the businesslike methods they had adopted in preparing it and he hoped the present conference would follow their example. He pointed out that the Dawes report was not a final solution of the reparations problem but that it was necessary to get this scheme into operation before other problems could be solved. Therefore it was his desire that the conference deal solely with the Dawes report.

Responding to the British prime minister's welcome, Premier Herriot of France thanked his colleague for his "noble words." He recognized the apparent difficulties before the conference but he thought everybody was imbued alike with "love of country and love of peace." Therefore he believed the interests of the various peoples concerned would be conciliated. Mr. Herriot proposed Premier MacDonald as chairman of the conference after which the business of organization was named secretary-general and three committees were appointed to work out the agenda along the lines of the Herriot-MacDonald communiqué issued from Paris on July 2.

This business conference adjourned until Thursday.

Compers' Aide Says Both Coolidge and Davis Are Wall Street Men

By Associated Press
Wisconsin Rapids.—Branding both Coolidge and Davis as tools of Wall Street, Paul Smith, personal representative of Samuel Compers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address Tuesday night before 200 delegates to the Wisconsin Federation of Labor convention here, declared that the present national political campaign will put the voters to the test whether they will remain subject to Wall Street or demand the rehabilitation of the principles of Americanism of Washington and Lincoln. The speaker referred to La Follette's overwhelming victory of two years ago when the Progressive voters reelected him to the senate by a majority of over 300,000, and went on to say that "the victory marked a winning fight for human rights as against property rights, and now the voters of every state have the opportunity to champion the same principles in a great presidential campaign."

West Palm Beach, Fla.—The will of Richard Crocker, former Tammany chieftain, made at Glenageary, Dublin, Ireland on Oct. 12, 1915 was admitted to probate here Tuesday by County Judge R. P. Robbins as his last will and testament. By it all previous wills were revoked and all real and personal property was bequeathed to Bula E. Crocker his wife.

A daughter, Florence was given $100,000 for Richard Crocker, Jr., Howard Crocker and Ethel Crocker, children, who are contesting the will, served an entry of appeal.

Smallpox Tale
Hits Michigan
Tourist Trade

Detroit, Mich.—Michigan's resort trade has been severely hit this summer by stories broadcast in other states to the effect that smallpox is widely prevalent in Michigan, according to chamber of commerce and resort bureau officials, who charge well organized propaganda stressing the bugbear of enforced vaccination is being spread to discourage tourists and resorters from entering the state.

To counteract this propaganda, which already, in the view of resort men, has cost the state thousands of dollars, the state department of health and the Detroit Board of Health have issued statements declaring Michigan to be safer from the danger of smallpox than in many years. There is no state of quarantine and no enforced vaccination and there has, not been, the statements say.

Forest Fires in Washington and Oregon Under Control; Others Still in Danger

San Francisco, Calif.—Eastern Washington, northern Idaho and California Wednesday were continuing their more or less unsuccessful battles against forest fires but rains in western Washington and Oregon have nearly ended the fire menace there.

Fires in northern Idaho and north-eastern Washington Tuesday night had burned over several thousand acres of timberland and had destroyed the surface workings of four mines, a number of ranch houses, and much property of lumber companies, including several hundred thousand feet of timber. So far as known, no lives have been lost although a number of persons have been injured and some livestock killed. Four persons are missing in British Columbia.

Flames were close enough to seven towns in the Pend Oreille River valley to cause anxiety to the inhabitants. In some places, ranches had loaded their belongings on railroad cars in preparation for a quick getaway. The surface buildings of the Nabob, Jim Blaine, Little, Pittsburg and Douglas mines near Kellogg, Idaho, have been destroyed. In the Santa Barbara national forest in California Tuesday night five fighting crews succeeded in throttling the western advance of the flames to a comparatively narrow front between Sawmill and Sawtooth mountains, only to receive word that a fresh outbreak had been discovered at Oak Grove, a mile north of the main fire line. The flames there were being fanned by a stiff wind.

A new fire in the Angeles national forest, also in California, in the San Gabriel range, between Mount Lowe and Mount Wilson burned over 30 acres but was controlled Tuesday night.

GAS BLAST STARTS
RAGING OIL BLAZE

Long Beach, Calif.—A terrific gas explosion destroyed the derrick of the W. H. Fisher oil company's No. 7 well at Signal Hill late Tuesday, and fire quickly spread to the other derricks in the vicinity and threatens to devastate the whole oil well area here.

Two derricks already have been razed—the Erie No. 7 and the Evans No. 7. A huge Union Oil Company storage tank containing 55,000 gallons is directly in the path of the flames as they lap along the oil soaked ground.

Damage already done is estimated at $300,000, with the prospect that this will be greatly increased before the flames are subdued.

PARSON WILL NEED TO WEAR HIS SPECTACLES
WHEN HE JOINS THESE TWO PAIRS OF TWINS

Omaha.—The minister will have to be sure he is wearing his spectacles when he marries Loren McKie and Verna Scoville.

For without his "cheaters" he is liable to see double and make Verna the wife of Lawrence McKie, and Loren the husband of Vera Scoville. Loren and Lawrence are twins. So are Verna and Vera.

Loren and Verna are engaged. So are Lawrence and Vera.

The two couples are going to have a double wedding. It will be a fitting climax, they think, to a double courtship.

The two sets of twins met three years ago when Loren and Lawrence, then on the DeWitt (Neb.) high school basketball team, played at Peru, Neb., where Verna and Vera were attending school.

At the banquet given the visiting team, partners were drawn. And the twins drew twins.

"Mother, look what we found—twins who match just as much as we do," shouted the girls when the McKie twins escorted them home.

Strange as it may seem, each of the boys generally knew which he was courting. And each of the girls generally knew which of the McKies she had a date with.

True, Loren once sat down beside Vera in a street car when he meant to sit beside Verna.

And once it took the girls nearly a whole breakfast hour before they discovered who was who after the boys had swapped ties.

"Well, if the preacher gets us mixed," declares Loren, "he'll have to do it right over again."

Loren and Lawrence live in De Witt. They are 22. Verna and Vera 21, reside here in Omaha.

Ninety Six Exhibits Submitted As Evidence to Boundary Commissioners

By Associated Press

Menominee, Mich.—Ninety-six exhibits, including maps, newspaper and magazine articles, chapters from history, proceedings of legislatures and congress, and other papers were included in the documentary evidence submitted late Tuesday afternoon by the state of Michigan at the first session of the conference here of commissioners in the Wisconsin-Michigan boundary controversy.

The conference is being held in the offices of A. L. Sawyer, special counsel for the State of Michigan. Another session was to be held Wednesday and Attorney General Andrew Daugherty of Michigan was expected to be present. The purpose of the conference at this time is to agree on documentary evidence that may be admitted as a part of the records in the case without preliminary proof showing they are authentic for the reason that both parties concerned concede them to be facts, and that their authenticity can be established by competent evidence. The conference will shorten the record, in that there will be no duplicate evidence submitted later to the supreme court, and will eliminate all nonessential evidence that may have accumulated. The documentary evidence examined at the sessions here relates to the Michigan side of the case. A similar conference at Madison will go over the evidence Wisconsin proposes to offer.

Democrats Reverse
Custom By Opening
Fight Before G.O.P.

John W. Davis Will Deliver Speech of Acceptance With in Fortnight, Opening Campaign in Earnest.

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C.—The presidential campaign will not begin in earnest until after the second week in August. President Coolidge's speech of acceptance which originally was to have preceded that of the Democratic nominee as per customs, has been postponed and the reversal of the order may have some bearing on the way the campaign will be unfolded.

Usually the Republicans hold their convention first and notify their candidates before the Democrats do. This means that the Republicans blaze the way and take the offensive. So John W. Davis will deliver his speech of acceptance at Clarksburg, W. Va., within a fortnight and will lay down the fundamentals of the campaign—his conception of what the issues should be.

The two keynote speeches, the one delivered by former Senator Burton of Ohio at Cleveland and the other by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi at the Democratic convention, reflect to a certain extent the argument that will be used on the stump, but neither speech gave a constructive program.

Mr. Coolidge has not had an opportunity since the adjournment of congress to make a comprehensive statement of what his policies will be if he is given the support of the country and a sympathetic congress. He will have a chance to digest whatever thoughts are expressed by the Democratic nominee and in a sense make a rejoinder.

The Democrats are anxious to take the offensive. John W. Davis is counting just now with all the party leaders but his basic ideas of what the Democratic program should be have been formed during the past year from close observation of the political scene. While he never was an active candidate, he kept in constant touch with what was going on.

The biggest issue of the campaign will be which party will be the more effective in carrying out campaign promises. The Republican party has been in control of congress ever since Croydon, England.—The American army world fliers had a dull day for crossing the English Channel. There was a hint of rain but the dreaded fog was absent.

A crowd gathered at the aerodrome here before the scheduled time for the arrival of the aviators. Many Americans were present anxious to greet their countrymen and to congratulate them on their record breaking 18,000 mile trip. Officials of the British Air Ministry and attaches of the American embassy were also on hand.

British aviators were generously ready to wish the Americans luck in the competition with the English round the world fliers.

A British airplane set out for the Channel to escort the Americans to the landing here.

The aviators made the distance between Le Bourget and Croydon, estimated at 225 miles in three hours and three minutes.

The three machines taxied easily into the Croydon aerodrome after an uneventful flight across the Channel from Paris. Lieutenant Lovell Smith, the flight commander, was the first to land, and one of the first to greet the American aviators was Mrs. Stuart MacLaren, wife of the British world flier, who asked news of her husband, now in the far east.

Le Bourget, France.—The American army round the world fliers hoped off from the aerodrome here at 11:05 Wednesday morning from England.

A French commercial air liner accompanied the three United States airplanes to point out the way to the Channel. They were followed by a French military escort of three planes which took them to the coast.

On the British side of the Channel another air escort awaited them.

The world fliers had fairly good weather for their farewell to France. There was a slight breeze and a hazy sky, but official reports were for satisfactory flying conditions.

Three American airplanes took off uneventfully. The pilots arrived only a few minutes before the departure. Their machines were brought out of the hangars only when they were about ready to start and they were ready for the air exactly at 11 o'clock, the time set for leaving, but they waited five minutes to have the commercial express planes as a guide.

The American planes found life so remain in the vicinity of the bright lights until the last moment, only allowing themselves sufficient time to arrive in London and keep a luncheon engagement with the British air officials.

Coroner Jury Decides Marshal Thomas Dunn Was Killed By Automobile

FUNERAL WILL BE THURSDAY

Charge Against Driver Remains That of Failing to Aid Man He Ran Down

Emil Knaack, Clintonville autolot whose car inflicted fatal injuries on Thomas Dunn, marshal of Hortonville, Sunday night, was arraigned before Judge A. M. Spencer at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon and his preliminary hearing was set for July 29. He was released on bail of $1,500.

Knaack's arraignment was followed by an inquest at the office of John M. Schmidt, justice of the peace at Hortonville, at 7:30 in the evening to determine the cause of the policeman's death. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that "Thomas Dunn came to his death by being run over by an automobile at about 9:45 P. M. on July 13, 1924, while performing his duty as village marshal."

CHARGES UNCHANGED

Charges against Knaack, who drove away after running down the marshal on the main street of Hortonville, still are those of failing to stop and render aid or give the name after injuring a person in an automobile accident. His hearing will determine whether this charge stays or whether it will be changed to manslaughter.

Members of the coroner jury who sat at the inquest were John M. Schmidt, the Rev. Thomas Goldsworthy, J. O. Birmingham, Charles Stillman, E. A. Graef, Floyd A. Hawk and William Kalkick. Attorney Stanley Staid appeared for John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney, who was out of the city.

Both the body of Marshal Dunn and the spot where the fatality occurred were examined by the jury.

Funeral services are to be held at the Dunn residence at Hortonville at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and afterward at the Baptist church. The Rev. Thomas Goldsworthy and the Rev. T. Holland will be in charge. Burial will be made in Union cemetery. The body now lies at the home of the deceased official.

Washington, D. C.—Mrs. Josephine Favrot, divorced wife of Representative Favrot of Louisiana, failed to appear in court Tuesday to answer charges resulting from a police raid last night upon her fashionable apartment in an exclusive residential district.

STEEL WORKERS HAPPIER SINCE DAY IS 8 HOURS

More Prosperity Is Shown and Production of Steel Is Greater

Gary Ind. —Thousands of blackened, overworked men, swinging dinner buckets, who troop up Broadway from the "works" every day are a changed crowd.

The 12-hour day. Old Man of the Sea upon the back of the steel industry, has been eliminated with the apparent result of better workers, a better town and better business.

There's snap in their step, animation in their talk, and smiles on their faces as they come from work. Those who ride the street cars, according to the conductors, are more trouble than they used to be—more boisterous, are more argumentative, more sulky.

They are better men to have about the house, say their wives and mothers. They pay more attention to the children and have reduced the truancy rate at school.

BANK CLEARINGS GAIN
They are buying better merchandise, say the merchants. Working 12 hours a day, they would send their wives to the stores, even for their own shirts and suits. Now they go shopping with their wives and demand better goods.

Gary bank clearing for four months were $67,949,000. They were only $56,114,000 for the same period last year when the longer hours were in effect at the mills.

The steel mills basketball league had 25 teams as compared with 10 the year before, when hours were longer. The public school's vocational classes were crowded with voluntary applicants, without any effort to get pupils.

With the sudden acquisition of hours of free time, the men remained sober and orderly. Arrests show no advance, says Chief of Police W. A. Forbis.

CORPORATION PROFITS TOO
This increase in happiness and human well-being, forced on the industry by American public opinion, is costing 10 per cent in steel production, according to Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation. Yet the corporation would appear to be bearing up under it.

The directors voted an extra 50 cents per share to the quarterly dividends on common stock in January and April, making it, as Judge Gary said, virtually "a 7 per cent stock." Net earnings for the first quarter of 1924 for the entire steel corporation, were reported as $50,075,445.

That is the largest in the history of the corporation except during the war, and more than $15,000,000 greater than during the first quarter of last year.

Twice since the 12-hour day was eliminated, in October and March, the Gary works have set world's records for volume of pig iron production.

FRANCE SEEKS TO RAISE BIRTH RATE

Paris.—The most coveted decoration of France, the Legion of Honor, is being used by the government to encourage people to till the soil and reward them for having large families. A list of 65 to whom the Legion of Honor was awarded recently contained the names of eight women.

One of the women was the mother of 23 children of whom eighteen survive. Nine live with her and work the land. Three died in the war.

The longest citation was given to Madame Viron, whose husband was killed in the war. Left with five children she managed a small farm which was destroyed by the Germans in 1918, but Madame Viron was one of the first to return and resume working the land.

Upon her second return to the farm her landlord informed her that he intended to sell the property, whereupon she borrowed money and bought the farm. She was cited as a "true type of a valiant French woman, worthy of all respect."

MILITARISTS SEEK CONTROL IN WHOLE KIAOCHOW SECTION

Chinese Politicians Swarm Into Tsingtao Anticipating Office Distribution

By Associated Press
Tsingtao, China.—Chinese politicians are swarming into Tsingtao on the assumption that the militarists soon will take over complete administration of the Kiaochow territory, with attendant distribution of many offices. The assumption is predicated upon belief that Hsiung Fing-chi, the civil governor, will be victorious in the present fight which seeks his impeachment on charges of misuse and misappropriation of public funds.

Hsiung has made no secret of his hopes for gaining control over the Kiaochow-Tsinao railway, the former German and later Japanese controlled Shantung railway, and these aspirations have formed the focus of the opposition to him. To obtain control, however, Hsiung must either override Dr. C. T. Wang, formerly in charge of these territories after the Japanese turned them back to China, or must convert Dr. Wang to his own point of view.

No one outside Hsiung's own faction credits him with any altruistic motives in connection with the railway, in spite of his contention that a naval base should be created here in support of a fleet of seven battleships, all financed from the road's earnings.

The railway's board of directors, with its active executive, Liu Fang, has held out steadfastly here to fore against interference with line but lately it is said, Liu Fang has consulted with General Wu Peifu, a leader of the Chih-li party and a strong militarist, regarding the railway.

Another complication in the situation is that the chief accountant of the railway, T. L. Ku, has refused to sign any order for withdrawal of its funds from its own operations and custody. Ku has appealed to Peking for support in his stand. Hsiung would prefer to remove Liu Fang and appoint Chang Tso-hung, former Shantung commissioner of finance, to his post.

POSTPONE HEARING OF MEN HELD FOR LARCENY

Because of the absence of one of the principal witnesses, the preliminary hearing of Raymond Dorschner and E. Wallerman of Dale, charged with larceny, which was to have been held in municipal court Wednesday, was postponed until Wednesday, July 30. The young men are at liberty on $1,000 bail each.

$20,000 VERDICT AGAINST PURNELL GIVEN BY COURT

By Associated Press
Columbus, O.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday affirmed the Southern District of Michigan in granting John Hansel and wife of Grand Rapids, Mich., a verdict for $20,000 against Benjamin Purnell, "King of the House of David."

Although he disliked to work for his clothes and obtained them in an easier manner, Norman Felzer, 19 living in Randall addition, will have to earn them anyway. So said Judge A. M. Spencer when the youth was taken before him Wednesday morning in municipal court for the theft of apparel from the store of George Sofia, 720 Appleton-st. The sentence is 20 days in the workhouse.

Felzer broke into the Sofia store on Saturday and stole two pairs of trousers, two articles. Police followed up clues which they had obtained and placed him under arrest. The charge against him was petty larceny.

$33,656 RETURNED TO COUNTY AS SHARE OF AUTO LICENSES

Nearly 500,000 Automobiles and Trucks Now Registered in State

Apportionment of $33,656.23 to Outagamie county in motor vehicle fees collected for the fiscal year ended June 30, was announced Tuesday by Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state. Gross license fees collected from this county were $139,963.75. Mr. Zimmerman said.

Mr. Zimmerman's report also showed that Wisconsin counties were apportioned $1,615,448 and that collections for motor vehicle fees for the year totalled to $6,721,130. Of this amount, 75 percent, or $4,846,347, is turned into the state highway fund under the motor vehicle law.

Expenses for collecting the funds, manufacturing the license plates and administrative costs amounted to $250,845, the report declares, and refunds amounted to $493, leaving a total of $5,461,792 for distribution to counties and the highway fund.

The summary also reveals that nearly one fourth of motor vehicle funds collected during the year came from Milwaukee. In that county the fee collected amounted to $1,478,730. Other high counties in the total collection are Dane, $305,325; Racine, $201,271; Rock, $201,635; Sheboygan, $173,182; Winnebago, $167,455.

His report also shows that the total number of licenses during the first six months is as follows: Pleasure cars 429,634; trucks, tractors, etc., 44,279; motorcycles 3,484; dealers, 2,585; publicly owned vehicles, 2,712; reregistrations, 3,115.

The largest amounts were apportioned to the following counties:

RADIO NOW CAN KEEP A SECRET

John Hays Hammond, Jr., photographed in Rome, Italy, where he has entered into contract with the Italian government for the purchase of a radio device which permits secrecy in transmission and permits more than one message to be sent simultaneously on the same wave length. Demonstrations in Italy brought to light that the device makes possible "narrowcasting," the opposite of broadcasting, and long the dream of radio fans. There's A Reason For Names Which Appleton Clubs Bear Peculiar or seemingly unfitting names of clubs have puzzled probably more than one reader of the society page, for who could help but wonder why a club was called West End Reading club when many of its members live on the east side of town, and why the Tuesday club meets on Wednesday.

The Green Apple bridge club strikes one as a peculiar name, for what in the world has green apples to do with bridge? It doesn't sound so nonsensical though, when its discovered that the club is composed of Green Bay and Appleton people. In 1881 women who lived on the west side of town organized a club, and because they lived on that side of town called it the West End Reading club. Since that time many members moved to other parts of the city and new members from other parts of Appleton were taken in, but because the club is one of the oldest and best known, the name has never been changed. This group of women became affiliated with the state Federation of Womens club in 1896 and was the first club in Appleton to be-

After being in almost continuous operation for more than a quarter of a century, the Riverside Fibre & Paper company's mill on the government canal, west of Lake St., closed down with the completion of the company's new papermill and the machinery is being moved to the new plant. The work of moving the paper machine will be commenced in a few days. Worn parts will be replaced and it is expected it will be in operation in its new location not later than Oct. 1.

The company has been engaged for several days in moving into its new office at the east end of its new mill and expects to be settled by the end of the week. Economy Ideas in Sewing.

Do you know that a man's shirt that is worn at the collar and cuffs will make a little three or four-year-old girl a nice dress.

That you can cover the line of a let-out hem with a row of running stitch embroidery, or that rick-rack braid, sewn on over the hem, will add to the attractiveness of the dress. No one will ever suspect it is let down.

That you can make a pretty apron for your little girl out of just one-half yard of material.

These are only a few of the suggestions, together with directions for carrying them out, are contained in the Sewing booklet which this Bureau offers for free distribution.

Your copy is waiting. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

LIBRARY REPORTS SHOW DEMAND FOR GOOD LITERATURE

Most Noted Increase Is in Books Concerning Religious Subjects

Chicago. —If the mind of the average American is indicated in the selection of his books and works of art, then matter tending to a sobriety of thought and a desire for knowledge predominates over what some critics and philosophers have termed the "jazz age" and its appeal for material regarding sex, scandal and the criminal. The most noted increase is in the general subject of religion.

Large libraries in division points of the country, universities, literary, music and art institutions, publishers and dealers without exception report an interest in reading and the arts not observed in recent years. The popular demand by groups embracing the subjects of religion, biography, psychology, etiquette, science, astronomy, radio, drama, poetry, home economics and vocations. Fiction circulation maintains its position but librarians report the public is requiring that it be clean.

Art and music enjoy a demand not heretofore as pronounced, due principally to widespread activity of federations and organizations which are endeavoring to promote their interest in the home and community.

One of the largest publishers in Great Britain said he found America the best buyer of good books.

The world war is partly responsible for the era of better reading matter, according to the head of a leading book firm here. Army and navy libraries, depleted of light reading, offered histories, biographies, technical books and essays to the service men, he explained. Once the desire for this kind of reading was created, they became eager to learn. After the war they set about studying books which would prepare them for a new place in the business and social world.

The daily newspaper is another influence in turning the public reader into channels of literature. Regular book and art review pages have become established features.

Another leading book dealer here believes the age of novels is past and that biography, industrial and technical books and historical novels will to a large extent replace the "flapper" novel dealing with love, crime and sex subjects. He says that where formerly first editions of successful novels ran 250,000 copies they are now, in many instances, less than 10,000 copies. War novels are in the discard although war memoirs by diplomats and officials are still good sellers.

Trade subjects are having a big sale and the brick mason, as an example, who before the war learned his trade by experience, is now backing up this experience with technical knowledge. High wages have enabled the worker to buy good books.

In letters to the American Library Association, the Los Angeles library says the most striking gain in the last year was in applied Christianity and religious education. The two best circulators were a life of Christ and a book on etiquette.

Etiquette, home building, vocations, religion, radio and sports are leading subjects for library patrons in St. Louis.

There are long waiting lists for two books on religion at the Chicago Library. Biography, drama and travel come next. There is a notable revival in Shakespeare. Radio is an absorbing subject. The gain in circulation last year averaged more than 1,000 a week.

Sex problem books, especially those going into sordid details, are not wanted by readers in the Washington Library. Fiction, too, has a decided drop in circulation, but has started back. Translations, biographies, drama, psychology, modern poetry, and home economics are leading in popularity there.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MAKES MIDNIGHT TRIP

Washington—The three and a half miles of daylight in Alaska recently afforded an opportunity for the government railroad in the territory to hold the only "midnight" excursion on record. The occasion was the Seward and Anchorage Chamber of Commerce midnight sun celebration at Fairbanks. Special rates were authorized by the Interior Department, as a result of which 114 tickets were sold bringing $2,247.

An entertaining feature of the celebration was the annual "Nocturnal" baseball game between the Anchorage and the Fairbanks baseball teams.

The two of Outagamieco's fairs will be held in August this year, according to fair dates announced recently. Outagamieco fair will be held at Hortonville Aug. 23 to 31 and the Seymour fair will be held at Seymour Aug. 19 to 21. It also was announced that the Northeastern Wisconsin fair will be held at De Pere Aug. 25 to 29.

MICHIGAN MAN HEADS ENGINEERS OFFICE HERE A. F. Everett, junior engineer of the government engineering office of Grand Rapids, Mich., succeeds the late A. M. Dier in charge of Fox River improvements. He has arrived in Appleton and is making his home at 707 Bonnett-st. His family consists of his wife and one child.

Mich. is spending her honeymoon in St. Elizabeth hospital. Mrs. Johnson was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Poquette, Neenah, when she suffered an attack of appendicitis and was rushed to the hospital for an operation. Her condition is regarded as serious.

Provincial Authorities Make It Possible for All Children to Learn "Three R's"

Victoria, B. C. —The "little red school houses" are few and far between along British Columbia's rocky coast.

Often, in fact, they are hundreds of miles apart. But that doesn't keep the boys and girls of the "wilderness" from learning their "three R's."

For even the children in isolated lighthouses and on islands, far from shore, are going to school every day. A correspondence course, inaugurated by the provincial educational authorities, is giving them the educational advantages they otherwise have been denied.

Already the department of education has taught nearly 1000 pupils by mail. Three hundred more are under instruction now.

At first it was feared the younger children might not be able to follow the instructions. But they were. They have passed their examinations with high marks—often higher even than those obtained by pupils that had the advantages of teachers' personal instruction.

"For some reason or other," says Inspector James Hargreaves in charge of the work, "they show more enthusiasm than the boys and girls in the regular schools."

In history and literature classes pupils are instructed to read certain pages and then write in their own words what they have just read. Spelling is written from dictation, the aid of the parents being solicited. Photographs and charts are used in penmanship, arithmetic and drawing.

Papers are mailed back to the inspector. He and his aides correct them and return them to the pupils. Should it appear a child has not grasped the subject properly, a personal letter, making the matter plainer, is dispatched him immediately.

The system of promotion is the same as in a regular school. Certificates are issued upon completion of the course.

All necessary books and stationery are furnished free. On file in the department's offices are any number of interesting testimonials from parents whose children have been enrolled.

MOTHER AND SON APART 17 YEARS JOINED BY FATE

Youth Searches World for Parent and Locates Her in East

Lynn, Mass. A son, 20, has just met his mother for the first time since he has been out of swaddling clothes.

He comes to her after 17 years, at a time when she needs him most. "She is poor. Her little form in Maine is heavily mortgaged. She is sickly."

"And I was so afraid I would be just a stranger to you," the son told his mother. "I am happy to have found you, and I am happier that I can be a real son to you."

Howard McConnell's story is one of strange complications—the sort one finds in the movies. Mystery, action, the unexpected, and the happy ending.

"When he was three years old his father kidnaped him from his mother. They had agreed to separate, but neither could agree to give up the boy. Police, the mother's relatives and friends were unable to find Howard after the kidnaping."

His father had taken him to North Handley, Quebec, and there he was brought up, believing that his aunt was his true mother.

It was not until Howard was 17 that he learned the truth. His "mother" was ill. One afternoon on his way home from school, a relative hurried to meet him. His "mother" was dying. The doctor had said it was but a matter of minutes. Howard raced home. In the sick room the woman lying on the bed beckoned to him, and drew his head down close to her mouth that he would be sure to hear her whisper.

"I am not your mother," she gasped—but she could tell no more. Death had intervened.

"It was almost like suffering the loss twice," McConnell tells of his tragedy. "I had loved and worshipped her as my own mother—at the time I almost wished she had not told me the truth."

The shock, with its ante-climax, was almost more than the boy could bear. Running away from his home he set out to find his real mother. All he had as means of identification was a picture of himself when he was a baby. A picture his mother might also have.

For a year he searched through the eastern states. Discouraged, desperate he joined the navy. Wherever he went he continued his hunt.

But it was not until early this month that he came across a tangible clue as to the whereabouts of his mother.

McConnell had left the navy and was but two weeks in the army, stationed at Fort Slocum, New York. By chance he met a relative of his mother. On a leave of absence he came to Lynn—

But by similarity peculiar coincidence, Mrs. Marion McConnell Mason of Wellington, Mo., had come to Lynn. She was ill and friends here were caring for her.

Mother and son met, brought together by George W. Kitchell, the boy's grandfather.

And now action is being taken to have the son released from the army, that he may support the mother whom he has just met—for the first time.

BRITISH CRAFTSMEN USE ANCIENT TOOLS

By Associated Press
Wenover, England.—Tucked away in the woods near the country residence of the British premier at Chequers Court are men making modern furniture with tools similar to those used hundreds of years ago.

The workshops, built in wigwam style beneath trees, contain a primitive kind of lathe made of branches of trees and bits of wire, the motive power being supplied by a long and supple branch fixed to a tree stump outside the workshop. Each lathe turns out as many as a gross of chairs daily. Most of the craftsmen are elderly, and the oldest not only takes his meals at his lathe, but is said to beside it at night.

GERMANS LEARNED TO FAKE WHIPPED CREAM

Berlin.—The sale of whipping cream, outlawed early in 1914 as a waste measure, is again permitted in Germany by government order.

This is the last of the food restrictions to be removed, and within a few days of the announcement every coffee house in Berlin was serving "whipped cream" in such amounts that the health authorities investigated and it was stated, ascertained that a substitute of white of egg, evaporated milk and other preparations was being used.

READ MRS. DIXON'S BOOK BEFORE YOU START WEST TRIP

"Westward Hoboes" Sure to Please Readers Interested in Travel

BY MURIEL KELLY

Perhaps I should say at once that Winifred H. Dixon's book "Westward Hoboes" is not a new book in the sense that it is hot off the press, so that those who are interested in the merely new will not be disappointed at the 1921 copyright. It was published first by Scribner's in 1921 and has been reprinted by the same company in 1924.

The book is a book of travel, the travels of two women from Massachusetts in the southwestern part of this country. They made the trip in a big car, which Mrs. Dixon describes as having "a rich hood and a manly tonneau; its front was intimidating, its rear reassuring." The car soon became known as the "old lady" but she stood up pretty well considering the mountains that she climbed and descended and the gumbo which she played through and in which she "boasted" as they said down in Texas.

Mrs. Dixon has a sense of humor which makes her a delightful hobo and which makes her story delightful to read. It may interest some readers who have had their fill of native sons in the western states to know that Mrs. Dixon and Miss Katherine Thaxter with whom she traveled did not include California in their trip. They made 14,000 miles beginning at New Orleans and going through Texas, New Mexico, Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Canada, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

There is always a temptation to recommend that the reader of a review rush out and procure the book at once. The temptation is resisted most of the time. I feel called upon however, to recommend to those who want to go bumbling in an automobile in the West that they read this book. In parts it is as thrilling as a train race in the movies. It is breathtaking for an amateur automobile driver to think of the narrow escapes that these two women had on their trip. The experiences include every possible adventure from sand storm to police station.

In the tale of travel which she has told, the author has included a great deal of information about the things worth seeing in the state in which they traveled. She was a keen student of the people whom she and Toby met. Her descriptions of them are delightful. But where Mrs. Dixon excelled was in a description of what the people in each locality called good roads. What she said about the roads and what the natives said about the roads makes one realize why Wisconsin highway map says that the detour on Highway 15 through Freedom is a maintained highway in good condition.

For Book Lovers

American and English differences in speech and customs is the subject of a little book called "Spoken in Jest" and carrying the subtitle "The Traveller's Deconfuser," which was published recently. It is the work of an English author, who writes under the name of "Chateaus" and explains the differences in slang, colloquialisms, sporting terms, manners, dress, and similar matters that sometimes prove perplexing until their significance is understood.

Success of the latest sort is greeting Edith Wharton's four books on Old New York just published. Mrs. Wharton's innovation of giving the public four books at one time has evidently seized upon the attention of novel readers. On June 6 Appleton published a new novel by Thomas Dixon "The Black Hood" in which he has written a romance of the days when the old Ku Klux Klan was tottering to its fall.

Late this spring E. P. Dutton published "Richard Harding Davis: A Bibliography," which was prepared by the late Henry Cole Quinby, well known in both his vocation as a lawyer and his avocation as a bibliographer. He was a warm friend of Mr. Davis. "Letters from a Senator's Wife" is the title of an interesting recent publication written by Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of the Senator from New Hampshire. Washington as the ladies who accompany our legislators view it is revealed in these letters.

BOOKS AS PRIZES IN POSTER CONTEST

Books that are to be prizes in the poster contest that is being conducted by the children's department of Appleton Public Library are on display in the children's room. The poster may be on some particular book or on books in general. All posters must be in before Nov. 1. The prizes are "Little Women" by Louisa May Alcott, "The Courtship of Miles Standish" by Longfellow, "Held" by Sperry, two copies of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" by Carroll, two copies of "Peter Pan" by Barrie, "The Mansion" by Henry VanDyke and two copies of "Toby Tyler" by J. O. Keller.

The contest is open to all children registered in the children's department and many of the little patrons of the library have entered it. The library also is conducting a summer reading club that has interested a large number of young people.

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

HAWTHORNE CRITIC OF PURITANISM

There is an almost universally accepted notion that Hawthorne is the interpreter of the Puritan spirit, its defender, its apostle. It is not in a spirit of mere perversity that I wish to call attention to the fact that almost exactly the reverse is true but to lure the present day reader with whom the Puritan subject is more too popular into reading Hawthorne.

It is possible that many a reader is kept away from Hawthorne because he is looked upon as a rigid moralist, a dour Puritan. If the newest generation could learn to understand that Hawthorne was not a writer wedded to traditionalism in morals and art but iconoclastic in spirit, they might regard him with much more sympathy and not as an old fogy Hawthorne was much more revolutionary in his point of view than the average short-haired "emancipated" Greenwich village person who thinks she has abandoned the Puritan restraints and is "free." It has been Hawthorne's curious fate to be regarded a Puritan while in reality his work was in the main criticism of Puritanism that went much deeper than anything Menchen has ever written although it is not so obvious.

"FREE" SEX STORY

"The Scarlet Letter" is perhaps the best example because it is his best known book. Those of the moderns who insist vehemently that art should be free and who decry the alleged Puritan taboo of the sex story can find in "The Scarlet Letter" a sex story as "free" as they may desire. It is the best possible answer to all who are in the habit of saying that sex novels should be barred from the library shelves.

But it is not the most important fact about "The Scarlet Letter." In Economics for Helen is the title of a new book by the prolific Hilaire Belloc which Putnam will publish in the fall, shortly after the release by the same house of the author his well-known Marie Antoinette. The book on economics is a popular treatise written in charming style "for those who know little of the field but would like to know enough to discuss it with intelligence." The story goes that Belloc wrote it for a friend who expressed a desire for some such work.

The following is from the London Daily Mail of recent date:

"There is less known about Ethel M. Dell than about any other living author of equal fame. She simply hides herself from the limelight. My readers will, therefore, be interested to hear that she is a quiet, gentle, timid, rather old-maidish (through married), but quite charming little lady, who is almost passionately sincere. The men and women in her books are more real to her than living people. She speaks of them with conviction, and one is left with the impression that they are all staying in the house and may be any moment walk into the room! They are her children, so to speak, and she is fulfilling her mission in life by giving them birth.

A great friend of mine once called to see Miss Dell. She told him that the Eastern scenes in her novels came to her in visions, and she had never been out of England. He suggested that her stories ought to be filmed. "I think not," said he. "On the screen one misses the spoken word, and the spoken word is everything. Don't you think so?" This rather took my unfortunate friend by surprise. After spilling half a cup of tea on the carpet and nearly choking himself with the other half, he stammered out that it was largely a question of inspiration. "But," promptly pursued the great author, "I never write unless I am inspired." My friend refused a second cup of tea.

Judge Edward A. Parry, the eminent English jurist, author of "What the Judge Thought" and "Seven Lamp of Adversity," has written a book which takes into account the popular interest in famous and sensational trials, an interest which he maintains is not of a morbid nature or due merely to a seeking after unwholesome sensations. His book, which is called "The Drama of the Law," to be published by Charles Scribner's Sons, discusses famous cases as tragedies, comedies, one-act pieces, farces, melodramas, crook drama, and supernatural plays. In his chapter "Concerning the Eternal Triangle" he deals at length with the Thaw case.

DOG BOOK SO MUCH IN DEMAND IT IS TAKEN OFF SHELF

Dog Contest in Weekly Magazine Causes Sudden Popularity of Dog Books

The composite dog contest in one of the weekly magazines has interested a great many people for Appleton Public Library has had a great many calls for books on dogs, especially those profusely illustrated with pictures. The most popular of these is "Complete Dog Book" by Bruette and such has been the demand that the book has been decreed a non-circulator and can only be used in the library.

Next in popularity are "The Home-maker" by Dorothy Canfield, published by Harcourt Brace and company, and "The Barbarian Lover," by Margaret Forster, published by George H. Doran company. These two books of fiction have been much in demand. Ida Tarbell has written an interesting book, "In the Footsteps of the Lincolns," published by Harper and Brothers, that has been very much called for within the last week.

Children have expressed a preference for books by that popular children's author, Louisa May Alcott. Among the favorites were "Little Men," and "Jo's Boys." Most of the boys wanted to read "The Lure of the Labrador Wild" and "The Story of Grendel of the Labrador."

Peter Clarke Macfarlane's book "Tongues of Flame," is the kind of a story that attracts a great many, for bravery, chivalry and adventure are woven into this tale of a man's battle for right. "Hellfire" Harrington is the man who feared none when he fought for the things he believed right and his battle, though it brings him imprisonment and the temporary loss of friendship of those about him, is a proof of the maxim, "good will triumph."

Harrington undertakes to protect the property of a group of Indians and in doing so he arouses the enmity of his employer who also is the father of the girl he loves. The book, published by Cosmopolitan, is one of the most in demand at the library.

101 Cents Worth of Gasoline in Your 1923 Dollar

As compared with the 1913 dollar, the dollar of 1923 bought 101 cents worth of gasoline, while it bought only 51.8 cents worth of clothing, 60 cents worth of shoes, 61.2 cents worth of rent, 68.5 cents worth of food, 45 cents worth of frame building, 53.4 cents worth of furniture and house furnishings, 46.3 cents worth of brick building, or 73.5 cents worth of farm crops. (National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.)

Gasoline is more than low in price. It is lower in price than almost any other essential commodity in general use.

This state of affairs has not "just happened." The fact that the 1923 dollar will buy more gasoline than the 1913 dollar could purchase is due largely to intelligent work and efficient organization by the leaders of the petroleum industry in general, and, so far as the Middle West is concerned, to the efficiency of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

In a recent interview, President Coolidge stated that "It was right for men to organize, and the ends of society were best served by organization, provided the organization was for service."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is emphatically an organization for service. From the very acquisition of the crude oil, to the last drop of gasoline run into your tank at a Standard Oil Company (Indiana) filling station, every thought, effort and act of this Company is bent toward giving the best service to the consumer.

This "best" service necessarily includes a low price. And the price of gasoline made by this Company has been perennially low, (both absolutely, and in comparison with other commodities) over a long period of time.

But price is only one angle of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service. It is the comprehensive facilities provided by this Company, embracing a complete cycle of service, which increases the purchasing power of your 1923 gasoline dollar over and above the 1913 gasoline dollar.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has anticipated automotive development. It has created great, modern refineries. It has trained a loyal and efficient body of employees. It has erected great storage depots to hold reserves of gasoline during the off-season against the period of rush demand. It has built an almost endless chain of service stations.

As a result, today you are able to fill up your gasoline tank at will, anywhere and everywhere, with uniformly dependable gasoline of high quality, at prices persistently and consistently low.

The Appleton company won the trophy last year and if it wins three years in succession the cup will be its permanent possession. Monday was devoted to preliminary machine gun practice and the men spent the spare time scrubbing equipment preparatory to going on guard on Wednesday. Commissioned officers had charge of Monday's drill. Noncommissioned officers spent part of the time firing machine guns and it is expected the company will start firing soon.

Co. D played baseball with the Rip-on company on Sunday, winning by a score of 40 to 10.

Noises in Universal Joints Usually the Result of Lack of Lubrication

The other day an owner brought his car into the service station and complained bitterly about a clattering jolt his car had developed when the clutch was let in, and noisy uneven running at low speeds. I got into the car and drove a few yards then asked the owner, "How long is it since you greased the Universal joints?" He turned to me, "Universal joints, what are they?" This is not an unusual answer to this question for thousands of owners never know there is such a thing as a universal joint on their car until it is brought to their attention in the manner described above. This ignorance, however, will cost you money in repair bills. If these joints are lubricated about every 500 or 600 miles they will not require to be touched until the engine requires overhauling. Neglect them and before you have driven 5,000 miles they may have to be replaced. Few owners of an automobile believe it, but it is a fact that if you would attend to the lubrication of the joints moving parts at REGULAR intervals, they could easily reduce their repair bills from 50% to 60%. It is neglect to give a car regular attention that provides most of the work for the repair shops. Few owners enjoy getting on their backs and crawling under the car, and that is what is generally necessary when you wish to attend to the Universal joints. Most owners lubricate all parts that are easily accessible, but where parts are difficult or awkward to get at, they are tempted to say—I think I will do that tomorrow, and as you know, tomorrow never comes.

CARE OF UNIVERSAL JOINTS

Now where are the Universal joints? There are generally two of them, one at each end of the shaft which connects the gear box to the back axle. They are of two types, the metal type and the fabric or leather type. With the fabric type there is no noise possible, but this joint requires careful watching to see that the bolts holding the fabric rings to the shaft are kept tight. If these become loose, trouble quickly develops and the fabric rings have to be replaced. If you notice a distinct jar, jolt or click, or as if a connection were loose every time you let in the clutch, or if when you are driving slowly the car runs with a jerky motion, yet the engine is firing regularly, you can be almost certain you have a worn universal joint. To find out if this is so, move gear lever to 1st speed, jack up one of the rear wheels and move it to and fro. If the joints are worn badly you will hear a click coming from them every time you move the wheel. Of course, there is always a certain amount of play between the teeth in the crown wheel and drive shaft pinion, but this will not allow the wheel to move more than 2 inches either way. If the movement is more than this, either the universal joints are worn or there is too much play between crown wheel and pinion. The play between these two gears can be taken up by an adjustment provided for this purpose, but the adjusting should always be done by a good mechanic. If the gears are meshed too deep, a loud hum will come from the back side, while if they are not meshed deeply enough, there will be a lot of backlash and noise. If you drive your car with worn universals, it puts a severe strain on every part of the transmission every time you let in the clutch. The way to avoid all trouble of this kind, is to take your grease gun about every 500 miles and crawl underneath the chassis and force some light cup grease into each universal joint, at the same time testing the bolts holding the joints to the shaft to see that they are tight. If you do this, you will find that your car will run smoother and better and that replacements will rarely be necessary until the car has been driven 20,000 miles or over.

MONGOLIAN PRIESTS
JOURNEY TO NIPPON

By Associated Press
Tokio.—Fifteen priests belonging to that branch of Buddhism which flourishes in Mongolia and Tibet, have arrived in Japan for a three-year stay to study Japanese Buddhism. This is a case of the pupil teaching the teacher, for Japanese Buddhism is a derivative of that religion as taught on the continent of Asia. It is in Japan, however, that Buddhism today has its most virile and progressive sects. The travelers had never seen railways or steamships before undertaking this journey, and they reached Tokio still dazzled by the rapidity with which the world outside their Mongolian retreats moves. Most of their three years will be spent in the great monasteries and temples in the region of Kioto and Nara, studying the tenets of the principal Japanese sects, Koyasan, powerful monasteries in the prefecture, headquarters of the Shingon sects, will receive them first.

CLUTTERED ICEBOX
DELAYS DELIVERY

Chicago.—Your iceman provided he has an average route and a distributing territory in the residential district, shoulders two tons of ice a day, carrying each piece a distance of 50 feet according to a survey compiled by the National Association of Ice Industries.

These 4,000 pounds of ice are divided among approximately 80 refrigerators, the survey shows, and the field of work covers an average distance of two miles.

An ability to stand the physical strain, at a threat of impairing health, bothers the iceman less than in keeping on schedule, the association says, who is endeavoring to put ice routes on the same basis of punctuality as the transportation systems.

"The iceman's greatest trouble is keeping on schedule time, because housewives frequently think he also is an expert in arranging their perishables to the best possible cooling results. Often he has to unpack and repack the ice chamber. This is the outstanding cause of delayed service."

"The delivery systems are being re-modeled and improved, and some members have so nearly perfected their systems that schedules are almost as accurate as that of a passenger train. That is our aim."

DETECTIVE WORKS TOO
FAST FOR ATTORNEYS

Milwaukee.—Efforts of attorneys for Fred A. Jones, alleged head of an automobile theft ring operating in Milwaukee, Chicago and Neenah, to prevent his extradition to Wisconsin were foiled in Chicago Tuesday by Detective William A. McKinney, who rushed his prisoner across the state line and lodged him in jail at Kenosha, for safekeeping.

Jones was arrested in 1922 after 15 cars had been traced to him. He was turned over to federal authorities at Chicago and Tuesday his sentence expired. McKinney was waiting for him with a warrant and extradition papers, charging him with obtaining money by false pretenses. Attorney Jones hurried to obtain a writ of habeas corpus, intended to keep the man in Illinois, but before they could serve the writ McKinney had his prisoner in Wisconsin.

Announcement has been made by the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company through its purchase of the general manager A. K. Shawano has signed a ten year contract with the Wisconsin Traction Light Heat and Power company whereby electrical energy will be furnished to the Shawano switch board from the Appleton company's plants. Shawano has been considering several ways of securing its power. The contract with the W. T. L. H. & P. company was signed on Tuesday. The purchase of these utilities greatly increases the plants controlled by the local company.

LAWRENCE STUDENT
KILLED IN FACTORY

Leon McLaughlin, 19, a sophomore at Lawrence college was electrocuted at the Badger Canning Co. at Beaver Dam on Tuesday. The boy, who was working at the canning factory was sent to turn off a switch. When he did not return, another workman was sent to get him. He found McLaughlin's body from which the life was snuffed out who had taken hold of a wire carrying 2300 volts.

Mr. McLaughlin is the second member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity at Lawrence to be electrocuted. The first was Mac Ainsworth, one of the charter members of the fraternity, who fell on a high voltage wire while working at a mining camp in the north. He is the third Lawrence college student to be killed in this way in six years.

BRAIN WORKERS
SHOULD EXERCISE
WITH MODERATION

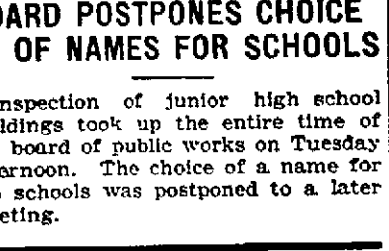

Each Individual Must Decide Needs Himself, Former Health Official Says

Harrisburg, Pa.—The violence and duration of exercise may cause a person to become stimulated, fatigued or exhausted, according to Colonel Edward Martin, former state commissioner of health. Dr. Martin said each individual must decide the amount of exercise to be taken, pointing out that what may be exhausting to one will be stimulating to another. "Stimulating exercise is brief in duration," Dr. Martin asserted. "It leaves one who takes it feeling more supple, active and better prepared for sustained effort, either mental or physical. This form of exercise should be taken at least once a day by all brain and indoor workers. It should be continued not longer than five minutes, and should be supplemented by deep breathing. The feeling after it has been taken is the best index as to how much should be taken."

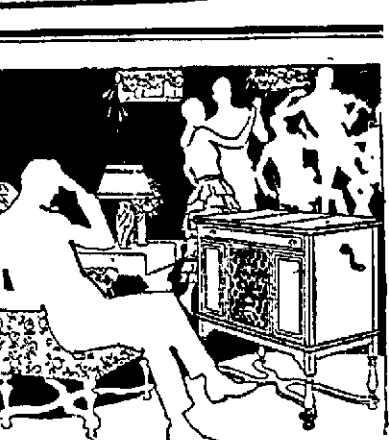

"Fatiguing exercise leaves the one who takes it tired and languid, mentally and physically; hungry for meals and sleep. It is good for the brain and indoor worker on his vacation, but it is not good for the brain worker when busy with his problems. One who takes it dead tired, irritable, without appetite and sleeping heavily or fitfully, with an all-in feeling on getting up in the morning. It is not good, even for the trained young athlete."

Lady Astor Gives Guests Tag Party

Lady Astor, famous as an innovator since she became the first woman member of the British parliament started a new idea in the way of "at-homes" recently, and the idea promises to spread not only in England but to America.

Having issued invitations for an afternoon party, Lady Astor set to thinking how she could keep it from turning out to be a boreome affair, as so many functions of this kind which she had attended were. Many of the guests would not know one another, and there was the great problem.

The ordeal of formal introductions, as necessary as they seemed to be, was an enervating prospect. Perhaps it was the hostesses little personal revolt against the stiff custom that led her to the way out of a difficulty that had made many another woman wish there weren't any such thing as an "afternoon." She might even have exclaimed to herself: "I wish people didn't have to be introduced and go through all these initial acrobatics."

Anyway, Lady Astor summoned up all the courage it takes to violate such a convention. She decided not to introduce her guests formally at all, but to label them and let them figure one another out. The result was the "hobby tag" party. She met each guest with a card bearing name and profession or hobby. As soon as tagged, the men and women were led at once to the drawing room. It worked. All fell into the spirit of the game, and went from one to another learning names and, more important in such a case, finding a subject of conversation. Almost every guest had a hobby and at the outset there was lively, small-and-large-talk. And Conservatives and Laborites had something besides politics to discuss.

Household Suggestions

FOR CUCUMBERS
To keep cucumbers crisp keep them in a basin of water in the refrigerator until about an hour before they are to be eaten.

Then pare, slice and sprinkle with salt and return to the ice box. Drain off the salt liquid before using.

DRY RUBBER GLOVES
The life of a pair of rubber gloves can be greatly prolonged by washing and rinsing them thoroughly after each using, and patting dry with a soft towel.

PROTECT CORKS
A little glycerin rubbed over the surface will keep corks from sticking.

In bottles containing glue, shoe polish or any such liquid.

KITCHEN SCREENS
Screens in the kitchen have a very definite use, and may have pockets on the underside to hold the various appurtenances needed in the kitchen, which need not be in full view.

IMPROVED HAT BOX
A hat box that is truly ornamental may be made by covering an ordinary box with wall paper or chintz in an interesting design, and using a bright colored ribbon bow on top.

CHAIR SEATS
When the cane seat of a chair has worn out it is well to remember that you can purchase a new leather seat that may be tied to the chair or tacked down at the four corners. With a leather pillow the effect is very good.

Good Manners

DON'T ASK HIM IN

The young lady will not invite her male companion into her home after he has escorted her from a function. She should say goodby and thank him on the doorstep.

"For the apparel oft proclaims the man."

This article is destined to appeal to two types of men, and ranging in ages between 15 and 60. So, too, there are two distinct and definite style tendencies this season in men's suits. There is the loose, lounsy straight drape of the English type suit, and there is the silhouette preferred by the younger element which likes the trim, slim look of the form tracing suit with its slightly suppressed waist line and longer coat.

The model shown in the illustration is a new one, and the coat is fashioned in both single and double-breasted lines.

© B. Kuppenheimer
LONG LABELS GIVE THIS SINGLE-BREASTED COAT GRACEFUL LINES

ed styles. The lapels neither instance are long with pockets and four buttons on sleeves. This model has no vent in the back and the coat fits smoothly over the hips, but the body lines and shoulders are not quite so loose as some of the spring models. The vest is a five-button garment with no collar and has a skeleton back—no lining and affords the maximum of comfort even on the hottest day, due to its lack of lining. The model has the Colonial top trousers, which to be exact, means that they feature the newest thing in trousers this season—pleated effects at the top. The width at the bottom is generous, and they are cut English with the 19 1/2 inch knee and a bottom which measures 17 1/2 inches for a 32-inch waist.

We all breathed a sigh of relief when we laid aside the heavy winter coats and blossomed forth in lightweight top coats. But do not make the mistake of having the top coat away with the advent of hot weather, for the well-dressed man will need the use of his top coat many evenings in July and August.

This year they are seen in close-fitting, loose-draping and box-coat effects. There is a wide range of colors to select from. Among these is the famous crushed blue, which is an indigo hue, brushed or crushed down with a transparent gray tint, producing a color effect that is at once pleasing and restful. Other shades are powder blues, sapphire grays and forest tans.

It may interest you to know that 38 per cent of all summer shirts are colored and that 29 per cent of collar-attached shirts are worn with collar pinned down. The colored shirts afford ample opportunity to wear the bat wing ties, which apparently have captured the young men by storm.

Regimental and club stripes in brilliant combinations of colors and stripes are quite the thing, so far as four-in-hands are concerned.

Unlike other seasons, the straw hats which were on display this season do not stress any radical departures from the models of last year. Several styles have been placed on the market with so-called unbreakable edges, but on the whole, all-stiff models have brims from one and a half to two and a quarter inches, and crowns vary from two and three eighths to three and a half inches.

Clean Homes Prove Aid To Longer Life

They say that we, today, are more healthy and will live longer, on an average, mainly because we know how to keep clean!

And this is not a "slam" at the old-time housekeeping, either! Rather isn't it remarkable how much they did to keep clean when it is remembered that they had no civic standards of sanitation, and cleanliness was almost wholly an individual matter. We, on the contrary, look after it with health bureaus, clubs and all sorts of municipal aids, accepting cleanliness as more or less a public responsibility.

But think of what the old-fashioned housekeepers had to contend with. How they fought flies and insects and malaria all practically unaided by any "city fathers." Yet they raised a pretty husky generation. How did they do it? How did they keep such clean, healthful homes?

Chief among the agents they employed for cleansing and disinfecting was ammonia; they used it abundantly—not only for washing dishes and in the laundry but for all cleansing purposes—and it is largely to the credit of this product that their families and homes laid the foundation of our present ideals of cleanliness.

Housewives of today realize, more and more, the value in this famous old standby which has stood the test of time and which, thanks to modern chemistry, comes to them better than ever.

In fact, in the highest grades of ammonia for home use, we have a good example of the strides made by chemical science towards establishing higher standards of living and a longer time to live.

Adventures Of The Twins

MISTER PUNCH HUNTS JUDY

"Did anybody see Judy and the baby?" asked Mister Punch. Mr. Punch looked very funny, dressed in a sort of red and yellow gown, and a high peaked hat with tassels on the sides.

"Did you see Judy and the baby?" he repeated. "I thought that after I'd thrown them out of the window they might come to Dootnany Land. Such queer people come here to live and Judy was certainly a queer 'un."

Nancy and Nick looked at Mister Punch and then at Mister Fuzz Wuzz and then at Mister Punch again. They didn't know a word he was talking about.

"If you do find Judy," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz, "what do you intend to do with her?"

"Oh!" cried Mister Punch, the tears starting to his eyes. "I intend to give her my stick and let me belabour me for a while. I'm sorry I treated her so. I never meant to, but after Toby bit me on the nose I kind of got mixed up in my head and didn't know what I was doing. Do you want me to tell you about it?"

"Oh, yes!" cried both Twins eagerly. "Please do, Mister Punch. It sounds just fine."

"Other people's troubles always do," declared Mister Punch with a grimace. "But sit down and I'll begin at the beginning."

"One fine day I got ready to take Judy and the baby for a walk. Judy was my wife and the baby was our only child."

"Well, I waited and waited and waited, and every time I called to her to hurry up, she would call back, 'Just a minute, Mister Punch. Just one more minute.'"

"I was looking out of the window while I was waiting and a showman passed with his dog Toby. Toby saw me and jumping up my stairs, he bit me right on the nose."

"Well, that made me awfully mad so I hit him and threw him out of the window."

"Up came the showman, and he yelled, 'Why do you throw my dog Toby out of the window?' And with that he gave me a good beating with a stick—this very stick I have in my hand."

"Well, I grabbed the stick and hit him and then threw him out of the window."

"Just then Judy came in with the baby and I guess I had gotten the habit, for I grabbed the baby and threw it out of the window, and next I beat poor Judy and threw her out, too! Oh, I was a terrible fellow!"

"After that I ran out and knocked down everybody I met—a doctor and two policemen, and a whole lot of people, and they put me into jail; but I got out and I've been hunting for Judy ever since. I want to tell her that I'm sorry, and I do hope the poor Judy isn't hurt. It isn't good for babies to throw them out of the window."

"Well, I should like to help you, my dear Mister Punch," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz kindly. "But so far Mrs. Judy has not come to Dootnany Land. I'll ask the rag-doll, and Mister Hinky Dinky, and the dancer and everybody, and I'll send you word if I hear of anything."

"Thank you," said Mister Punch, marching stiffly away on his little wooden legs. "Thank you—thank you."

And away he went, tassels, cap, long stick and all.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT MY DEAR HUSBAND:

I have a very nice plan to propose to you. The nurse who has been taking care of your mother I find is without relatives, and she has become tired of life and hard work which public nursing entails. I sounded her the other day on the subject, and find that at least for a year she would very much like to settle down in some quiet, easy place like your mother's home.

She is a very sensible young woman about 30 years old, and she seems to get along with your mother perfectly. Indeed, I think it is she who made your mother so gracious to me lately.

I think she would be glad to become your mother's companion and nurse, when nursing is needed for about $75 a month. I am sure we can in some way pay this to your mother. It would make her much easier, and her life pleasanter, and I am sure it would take a great deal of care off your shoulders, dear Jack.

To me, dear, there is nothing in the world so easy to give as money, and yet most of us hang on to it so tenaciously. I'm sure I can economize and pay half of this out of my allowance, for the real comfort of knowing that your mother is happy. Don't you think it is a good scheme?

By the way, dear, I wonder if you remember when we were first married what a terrible quarrel we had and how particularly ugly you were when I innocently opened one of your letters. I think you must have forgotten it; otherwise you wouldn't have sent me Miss Perler's letter opened.

Oh, Jack! Jack! I'm afraid you will never learn that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. You might have known I would have sent you the letter; then why be so curious about it?

I'm wondering if you recognized the handwriting on the envelope. However, I don't think it was any more right for you to open my letters than you thought I was right in opening yours. Please don't do it in the future.

I am glad you forwarded me the cables from mother and Alice. My sister is a sly little puss, and I'm almost sure now that she's been in love with Karl ever since she was a little girl. They're coming home immediately and will be married directly they arrive and arrangements can be made.

All the good wishes that I can give her, Jack, are bottled into one, which is: I hope she'll be as happy as we have been.

I wish I were there now, and have you take me in your arms and ask me in that boyish voice of yours: "Do you really mean that, Leslie, that we've been happy?" For I want to tell you I would not exchange you with all your faults for all the Karl Whitneys in the world.

I'm coming home Saturday. Lovingly, LESLIE.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS
The greatest menace on earth to happiness is the ill health with which so many women are afflicted. The young woman is subject to pain and irregularities, the mother to the tortures of displacements with consequent pains, aches and nervousness—the middle aged woman to the uncomfortable conditions caused by this critical age. The remedy to control these conditions and restore the system to a normal healthy condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for fifty years has been restoring sick and ailing women to health and happiness.

Cuties In Comedies Excel In Athletics

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

Hollywood—There are two kinds of girls: those who insist upon being the heroines of heavy emotional dramas, and those who give us blessed comedy relief.

It occurs to this writer with an oppressive sense of guilt, that his daily scrawl from Hollywood gives altogether too much space to these former. Hence today's text as a mere pretext for pictorially parading some of Hollywood's hoydens, the Christie Comedy maids.

This bevy of mimetic madcaps has more fun in filming fun than any aggregation in studio land. It is an attitude toward life and work which the Christies foment and preserve. No girl is allowed to grow sour on the job.

The spontaneous sense of comedy which seems to develop in proportion to their love of athletics. Those who shy at the idea of provoking laughter also baffle, as a rule, at the impulse to leap a hurdle or to cast a javelin—unless it be at some man's heart.

Proceeding upon this postulate, the Christies have linked athletics and physical contests to their comedy curriculum. Under tutelage of Hoyt Haskins, former athletic coach at Yale and the University of Southern California, at least a dozen of these comedienne show promise in the realm of sports. And this prowess in turn is utilized in film clowning.

Vera Steadman excels in the jump shot put and discus throw. Duane Thompson wields the javelin. Ethel Miller, Dorothy Chase, Cecilia Joyce and Andree Bayley lead in the sprints. Lucille King, Hazel and Doris Rowland excel in the hurdles.

They have challenged the athletic co-eds of the University of Southern California to a field contest, seriously, not humorously.

Dolorous drama, real and reel can be tolerated in the winter months when shivering mortals seek to warm themselves with emotional effluence as well as ear muffs. But in spring where these days and is made up in all types of material and all colors.

Papermakers Invade Sheboygan For First Game On New Schedule

Wisconsin State Baseball League Makes Fresh Start Sunday With Six Teams Left on Battle Front.

Six surviving teams of the Wisconsin State Baseball league start a new schedule with clear slates Sunday afternoon when the Papermakers invade Sheboygan for the second time this year. Oshkosh is due to play the Falls on their home grounds, while Fond du Lac is to receive the Baymen as guests.

Sheboygan and Neenah-Menasha were conceded to have the strongest teams in the loop before Kaukauna dropped out, but Appleton had defeated both of them on their own diamonds. In the last game before the reorganization the Falls shut out Smith's aggregation, 1 to 0, in a desperate battle before a large crowd here, but the Appletons fans who attended agreed that the game was the best they had seen this year despite the fact that their favorites were beaten.

EXPECT FAST GAME
The Papermakers always play a better brand of ball against the leaders than they do against the tailenders, and the Sheboygan tilt probably will bear out this rule. It will be the second time the Papermakers play on the new Sheboygan diamonds and according to Billy Lieble, manager of the Champs, he expects the stands to be crowded to capacity. Appleton is considered one of the best drawing teams in the loop at Sheboygan and Menasha, and numerous fans from this city accompany the team on these trips.

Buster Braun will be on the Sheboygan mound, with Eddie Stack pitted against him again. In their previous contest, Stack had the better of the argument and Braun will be out for blood Sunday. Several of the Sheboygan regulars were out of the game with an injury by the Champs. Appleton was no better off, however, as Ted Lamers had been injured and Amby Welsgerber and C. Smith failed to appear for the game.

POST-CRESCENTS BATTLE KIWANIS
Recovering from a severe attack of stage fright which lost them their first game of the season with the Sixth Ward Homebrewers, the Post-Crescent Printers were due to clash with the Kiwanis club of the Lark Twilight Baseball league Wednesday afternoon at Jones park.

The Printers played up to their usual standard during the first part of their contest with the Seofluffs, but a couple of errors which resulted in several runs threw them off and for the rest of the game the Sixth Warders had an easy task. However, it is expected that the Kiwanis will fall easy victims to the Post-Crescent club, although the former lead the Lark league.

The contest was scheduled to start at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and no admission was to be charged. The Printers have issued a challenge to all the members of the Lark loop, and it appears probable they will accept.

PITTSBURG LANDS STAR OUTFIELDER IN HAZEN CUYLER

Fleet Outfielder Seems to Be Best Prospect in National League This Season

Pittsburg—In Hazen Cuyler, fleet outfielder the Pirates appear to have picked up one of the best all-round prospects to come into the National League in seasons.

Cuyler joined Pittsburg late in 1923, coming from Nashville, in the Southern Association. Cuyler was one of the big noises in that circuit. In 149 games he hit .340, getting 195 safeties in 574 times at bat. He had a total base record of 205, which included 39 doubles, 17 triples and 9 home runs. He was second high in both doubles and triples.

Cuyler led the league in stolen bases with 68, being a good distance out in front in this respect. Among the regulars he stood third in the batting averages. He also had 35 assists in the outfield, 11 more than his nearest rival.

Since coming to the Pirates he has made himself solid with the fans, who like his aggressiveness, heads-up baseball and natural ability. Any one capable of breaking into the Pittsburg outfield, composed of Carey Bigbee and Barnhart, must have something. And that's what Cuyler did. In many games this season he has been used in place of Barnhart.

AT THE RINGSIDE
Ain't it awful what these biscuit and gravy fighters get away with nowadays?

"Imagine paying a bologna like Dempsey $400,000 to step a couple terrible rounds. It's that right, then hair nets make great parachutes."

"It wouldn't be so hard to inhale if Dempsey could really fight, but all he's got is a right hand."

"You uttered a few undying phrases there, Thick Lips. Why, any one of the old-timers would have made him jump out of the ring."

"John L. Sullivan would have flattened him with both hands tied behind his ears, and I don't mean possibly."

"And you don't have to stop with John L. either. Corbett would have left-jabbed him simple, and I understand he ain't far from that as it is."

"I got too much consideration for my imagination to even suggest what Jeffries or Johnson would have done to him without even taking a warm-up."

At this point a florid-faced announcer begs the indulgence of the crowd. "I have the pleasure, ladies and gentlemen, to introduce to you tonight the champion heavyweight of the world Mr. Jack Dempsey himself."

Tumultuous apple sauce. The above debate is continued—"And I want to say that this Dempsey has got more class than an Astor lawn fete. There ain't nothing he can't do, plus."

"You ain't giving me no inside news, that Heels. I saw this superman make gray ashes out of Willard at Toledo."

"You can take the rollcall on the old-timers as far back as you want to but I'll string along with Dempsey."

"String along with him? Say, I'd hate to tell you what this Dempsey would do to them old hams."

The baseball experts tell you a lot about second Ty Cobbs. Especially in the spring. Well, here's the real second Ty Cobb, oldest son of the great Detroit star.

Does he want to be a star baseball player? Not on your life.

"Tennis is heaps more fun," he says.

Junior recently took part in a Georgia tournament and was beaten in the second round.

FREMONT DEFEATS WINNECONNE, 3 TO 2

Double Play Spoils Ninth Inning Rally of Losers in Exciting Tilt

Fremont Sunday afternoon noosed out Winneconne, 3 to 2, in a baseball contest full of thrills. Errors on both sides threatened upsets several times and timely hitting gave Fremont the victory.

Fremont started the fireworks when Verdun slammed out a two-bagger and came home on errors by the Winneconne second baseman. There was no further scoring up to the first of the sixth when Fremont scored a second run on a safety by Wenzel, a sacrifice by Wall and a hit by Carroll.

Winneconne threatened to upset the score in the last of the sixth when errors gave them two runs, tying the count. The Fremont fielders tightened up thereafter, and spoiled all further attempts.

In the first of the eighth a hit by Wall and an error on Boynton gave Fremont the winning run. A brilliant double play in the last of the ninth ended the aspirations of Winneconne.

Wall pitched an excellent game, allowing but four scattered hits and sending 14 men to the bench on strikes. Tella and Boynton pitched for the Winneconne club, both of them allowing eight hits and registering eight strikeouts.

Sunday afternoon the Wisconsin Telephone Co. team of Appleton plays at Fremont.

KIWANIS ENGAGE AD CLUB IN TILT

Both ends will meet Thursday afternoon when the Kiwanis, leaders in the Lark Twilight Baseball league, clash with the Ad Club which holds undisputed sway in the cellar. In the opening game of the schedule, the Kiwanis defeated the Advertisers, 21 to 16. The contest was a slug-fest, match featured by more than a half dozen homers. Threebaggers and two basehits. Fielding on both sides was loose, but since that time the teams have improved considerably in all departments and the score is expected to be more nearly normal Thursday.

The Kiwanis are undefeated so far. They were scheduled to play the Post-Crescent Printers Wednesday afternoon, and expect to benefit by the experience.

CARL MAYS' DELIVERY NO LONGER IS PUZZLER
Now that National League batters have become accustomed to the peculiar underhand motion used by Carl Mays, former Yankee star, he is now meeting with nearly so much success as early in the season.

Leonard And Walker Must Risk Titles, Moguls Say

New York—Mickey Walker and Benny Leonard must box to a decision in New York and must sign an agreement that the winner will meet Dave Shade or suffer suspension in this state, it was made clear by the boxing commission at Tuesday's meeting. That means that Walker and Leonard cannot box at Boyle's Thirty Acres without being suspended, along with Tex Rickard, if he promoted the fight there.

It was decided to start the lightweight elimination tournament all over again, with entries welcome from all first-class 135 pounds up to Aug. 1 on payment of a $500 forfeit that the boxers entering will abide by the rules of the committee of promoters in charge of the tournament.

Charley Johnston, manager of Johnny Dundee, was suspended until such time as he signs for a bout between Dundee and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, challenger for the featherweight title. Dundee, however, is not under suspension.

It also was announced that the Queensboro stadium received a permit from the board of standard and appeals to operate boxing shows until Oct. 8.

WOMAN MAT STAR ON MADISON CARD

Virginia Mercereau, formerly of Appleton, Sunday put up a good exhibition of wrestling on the Demetral-Matuda card in Madison against George Volkert, a 175-pound amateur of Madison.

Miss Mercereau won her match at the end of the first 15 minutes when her opponent failed to throw her. Following this period, the superior weight of Volkert was too much for her and she lost two straight falls in 17 and 4 minutes respectively.

The opponent Miss Mercereau had been scheduled to face failed to show up and Volkert was substituted at the last minute. Her manager, William Ketchel, had posted a standing offer of $150 to any wrestler who could win from her within 15 minutes. As Volkert weighed 175 pounds, he agreed to cut this amount to $100.

KAUFMAN HAS DELUSION HE THROWS ONLY STRIKES

National League umpires say that if Pitcher Tony Kaufman had a better disposition he would be twice as good a pitcher. According to the umpires Kaufman labors under the delusion that he throws nothing but strikes.

Denver—Clyde Edmundson, Chicago Negro welterweight, and Frankie Herrera, Trinidad, Colo., fought a four-round draw.

WOMAN GOLF CHAMP TEES OFF IN FIRST ROUND OF TOURNEY

Bernice Wall Meets Mrs. D. K. Pierson in Opener of Elimination

Milwaukee—Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, present champion, playing against Mrs. D. K. Pierson of Blue Mound, started the first round of the elimination play when they teed off at 9 A. M. The match which was expected to be watched most closely Wednesday was that between Mrs. S. R. Boyce of Madison and Miss Ruth Landauer of Milwaukee. The Milwaukee girl qualified with 94 while Mrs. Boyce was six strokes higher, but at the strength of her first match play at Madison last year and her hard work in preparation for the tournament, the Madison woman is expected to go a long way in the tournament play.

The draw for Wednesday's play with Tuesday's qualifying score follows: Miss Bernice Wall vs. Mrs. D. K. Pierson, 97; Mrs. D. Russell, 93 vs. Mrs. D. G. Cantwell, 100; Miss Virginia Gittens, 88, vs. Mrs. A. Schlessinger, 99; Miss Ruth Landauer, 94, vs. Mrs. S. R. Boyce, 100; Mrs. G. Blankley, 98; Mrs. G. C. Phelps, 93, vs. Mrs. G. N. Deeken, 100; Mrs. Harry Lutz, 92, vs. Mrs. A. R. Lawton, 93; Miss Bessie Greene, 96, vs. Mrs. Jack Blakeslee, 101.

At the end of Tuesday's round three entries were tied at 101 and Mrs. Blakeslee of Kenosha won the chance to compete when she defeated Mrs. E. R. Whitcomb of Blue Mound and Miss Harriet Ellis of the same club.

ROD AND REEL

M. J. V. ROSE

LOSING THE BIG ONE

When you talk of disappointment there is nothing comparable with the loss of a game fish, especially after he has "fought to a finish," and then in the grand finale he will wave his tail as a parting gesture just as you were counting him added to the stringer.

It's either the line snapping, a hook breaking or a slip of some kind that sets the little "gloom bug" to work in the fishing game. Selecting tackle with care will avoid many of these disappointments and pay the angler twofold in satisfaction of knowing that it will hold up under all conditions.

Then there's the old jinx, "lost him at the boat," where nine tenths of the slip-ups occur. There is about one angler out of ten that understands the proper method of handling a good sized game fish at the boat and one out of five that knows the proper method of using a landing net. Where the slips usually occur is in trying to slip a slip net under a game fish by the easy method and which usually fails to connect. Others try to slip it over the head, but the proper method of netting is to hold the line taut, then with a quick scoop, slip the landing net over his tail and at the same time keep the line taut so the hook don't become all tangled into the net, then when you have him in the boat remove the hook and let the "big one" kick to his heart's content. In slipping the net over the tail first there is less danger of losing him because it's the "swish" of that tail that usually does the damage.

Net your own fish whenever possible, then you cannot blame the loss of a big one on a fishing partner. But there's an exception to this rule in musky fishing, because it takes two to play the game of landing the "tiger of fresh waters" successfully and a gaff is usually used instead of the landing net.

MACK DERRICKS CHICK GALLOWAY FOR ERRORS

Two years ago, American League critics pronounced Chief Galloway of the Athletics the best shortstop, the most improved player in the league. Recently Connie Mack removed him from the lineup because of erratic work in the field.

WASHINGTON SHORTSTOP IS HAVING BIG SEASON

Roger Peckinpugh of Washington on his great play this year is probably the most valuable shortstop in the American League. His brilliant defensive play has been one of the greatest contributing factors to the sensational showing of the Nationals. Peckinpugh is covering more ground than he ever did, which is saying a great deal.

BLUEGE WEAK BATSMAN

If Bluege of Washington was a better batsman he would be vying with Joe Dugan of New York for the honor of being the best third sacker in the American league. He is every bit as good a fielder.

Title Holder

LOUISE FORDYCE

For the third straight time the Ohio golf championship has been won by Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, O. It will be remembered that Miss Fordyce went to the finals in the western last year.

AMERICANS HAVE GOOD PROSPECTS IN PARIS EVENTS

Competition Promises to Be Keen As Fields Narrow Down in All Branches

Paris—Now that the fields are narrowing down in all branches of the Olympic championships, competition promises to be keener with the Americans all set to carry a determined battle to their rivals in at least three sports—tennis, swimming and boxing. Having qualified the last of their five entries Tuesday when Yale's crew and the doubles sculling combination of Costello and Kelley scored easy victories in trials for Thursday's finals. The United States oarsmen will have a day of rest. Other American contestants, however, will have an exceedingly busy schedule.

Miss Helen Willis, American woman tennis champion, demonstrated by eliminating Mrs. Satterthwaite of England in the singles Tuesday, that she will make a strong bid for the Olympic title. The California star appears to be more at home on the Columbus clay courts than she was on the Wimbledon turf.

Wednesday Johnny Weissmuller, holder of some 50 world's swimming records and whose renown in France as a champion swimmer equals that of Charles Toddock's as a sprinter, makes his debut at the Les Tour-Elles pool in the Olympic competition. Johnny, who has been chafing at the bit while his compatriots were being eliminated, will start in the 400-meter eliminations. Also starting in this event are Arne Borg, Frank Beaurepaire and Andrew Carlton. The latter is the sensational Australian who Tuesday won the 1500 metre title by setting a new world's record.

Browns Lose To Yanks When Umps Rules Trio Safe On Double Play

First Division Teams Widen Gap Between Trailers While Maintaining Own Relative Positions.

Second division clubs in the American league Wednesday are in the throes of an infernally complex as they ponder the results of their latest clash with the four pace makers. New York, Washington, Detroit and Chicago, while maintaining their own relative standing intact, widened the gap a full game between themselves and their trailers by defeating St. Louis, Cleveland, Philadelphia and Boston respectively.

Shocker, who attempted to redeem himself from his trouncing in the first game of the series, again faltered and lost a 5 to 4 decision to the Yanks. The Browns' defeat was embittered by an unfortunate break in the eighth inning, which put their opponents in a position to score the winning run. Umpires Evans and Owens disagreed as to whether Meusel's liner to left with Dugan on third and Ruth on first had been caught by Outfielder Bennett. Bennett threw to first, thinking to double up Ruth. Evans sustained the claim of a double play but Owens, who was the final decision rested, permitted Dugan to score and ordered Ruth to second and Meusel to first.

Ruth subsequently registered the deciding run.

WASHINGTON WINS, 4 to 2 Behind the kind of pitching that has made Walter Johnson one of the greatest boxmen of all times, Washington scored a comparatively easy victory over Cleveland, 4 to 2. Johnson set the Indians down with five hits. It is the Senators' fourth straight win in the five game series.

Detroit won a lurid slugfest match from Philadelphia, in which seven pitchers were used, by an 11 to 9 score.

Manush was the leading slucker with four hits out of six efforts.

Chicago made it three in a row from Boston with an 8 to 6 triumph. Both Leverett and Fuhr were hit hard. The Giants increased their lead over the coasting Cubs to nine games and a half and cleaned up the four game series with a 9 to 4 win. Kelly hit his sixth homer in five contests and his thirteenth of the season. Hartnett hung up his tenth circuit wallop.

Rogers Hornsby's tenth and eleventh homers of the year relieved the monotony of St. Louis' defeats as the Cards dropped another to Brooklyn, 7 to 4. Jim Roberts, Manager Robinson's new right hander, pitched his first game for the Dodgers.

With Earl Smith, recently purchased by Pittsburgh from Boston, behind the plate, the Pirates won a 3 to 1 contest from the Phillies.

LITTLE CHUTE PUTS NEW BASEBALL TEAM IN FIELD

Little Chute has organized an independent baseball team under the management of Charles Schell of that village. The new club is looking for Sunday tilts and draws the line at no rival. Teams looking for competition are requested to write or telephone the manager.

MADISON BLUES HUMBLE NEENAH-MENASHA, 12-5

Neenah-Menasha Tuesday afternoon bowed to the Madison Blues, 12 to 5 when the Blues slammed Meizer all over the lot after the seventh stanza and score nine runs in the excitement.

Up to the seventh the Falls were in the lead, 5 to 3, and Meizer was going good. Bowman pitched for the Blues.

HARD LUCK FOR MACK

Hard luck appears to camp on the trail of Connie Mack. "Curley" Ogden, after losing three games for Mack, was sent to Washington at the waiver price. He proceeded to win his four next starts for that club.

NEW YORK—MIKE BALLERINO WON THE JUDGES' DECISION OVER JOHNNY LEONARD IN TEN ROUNDS

Boston—Jack Sharkey, Roxbury heavyweight, defeated Homer Smith, Kalamazoo, in ten rounds.

$200,000 DAMAGE DONE TO ROADHOUSE BY FIRE

Mount Clemens, Mich.—The Post-Chartrain-on-the-Lake, one of the largest roadhouses in this part of the country, burned to the ground early Monday with a loss estimated between $150,000 and $200,000. The twenty employees who slept in the building escaped in their night clothes, their first warning being the collapse of the kitchen roof.

The fire is believed to have started in the kitchen destroying the recently built dance pavilion.

KLANSMEN GATHER NEAR OSHKOSH; INITIATE 50

Oshkosh—Eleven hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan from Fond du Lac and Oshkosh gathered on the shore of Lake Winnebago near the county line Monday night and initiated a class of 50 members. A 50-foot cross was burned and an address made by a speaker from Indiana.

Paula was very gay these days. Too gay, it seemed to Dirk that her nervous energy was inexhaustible—and exhausting. Dirk refused to admit to himself how tired he was by the shallow heart-shaped exquisite face, the lean brown clutching fingers, the air of ownership. He had begun to dislike things about her as an unfaithful spouse is irritated by quite innocent mannerisms of his unconscious mate. She scuffed her heels a little when she walked, for example. It maddened him. She had a way of biting the rough skin around her carefully tended nails when she was nervous. "Don't do that!" he said.

Dallas never irritated him. She rested him, he told himself. He would arm himself against her, but one minute after meeting her he would sink gratefully and restlessly into her quiet depths. Sometimes he thought all this was an assumed manner in her.

"This calm of yours—this effortless-ness," he said to her one day. "Is a pose, isn't it?" Anything to get her notice.

"Partly," Dallas had replied, amiably. "It's a nice pose though, don't you think?"

"What are you going to do with a girl like that?"

Here was the woman who could hold him entirely, and who never held out a finger to hold him. He tore at the smooth wall of her indifference, though he only cut and bruised his own hands in doing it.

"Is it because I'm a successful business man that you don't like me?"

"But I do like you."

"That you don't find me attractive, then."

"But think you're an awfully attractive man. Dangerous, that's what."

"Oh, don't be the wide-eyed ingénue. You know damned well what I mean. You've got me and you don't want me. If I had been a successful business- man would that have made any difference?" He was thinking of what his mother had said just a few years back, that night when they had talked at her bedside. "Is that it? He's got to be an artist. I suppose, to interest you."

"Good Lord, no! Some day I'll probably marry a horny-handed son of toil, and if I do it'll be the horny hands that will win me. If you want to know, I like 'em with their scars on them. There's something about a man who has fought for it—I don't know what it is—a look in his eye—the feel of his hand. He needs't have been successful—though he probably would be. I don't know. I'm not very good at this analysis stuff. I only know of as—well, you haven't a mark on you. Not a mark."

You quit being an architect, or whatever it was, because architecture was an uphill disheartening job at the time. I don't say that you should have kept on. For all I know you were a bum architect. But if you had kept on—if you had loved it enough to keep on—fighting, and struggling, and sticking it out—why, that fight would show in your face to-day—in your eyes and your jaw and your hands and in your way of standing and walking and sitting and talking. Listen. I'm not criticizing you. But you're all smooth. I like 'em bumpy. That sounds terrible. It isn't what I mean at all. It isn't—"

"Oh, never mind," Dirk said, wear- ily. "I think I know what you mean. He's not looking down at his hands— his fine strong unscarred hands. Sudden- ly and unreasonably he thought of another pair of hands—his mother's— with the knuckles enlarged, the skin broken—expressive—her life written on them. Scars. She had them. "Listen, Dallas. If I thought— I'd go back to Hollis & Sprague's and begin all over again at forty a week. If I thought you'd—"

"Don't."

XX

General Goguet and Roelf Pool had been in Chicago one night and part of a day. Dirk had not met them; was to meet them at Paula's dinner that evening. He was furious about Pool but not particularly interested in the warrior. Restless, unhappy, wanting to see Dallas (he admitted it, bitterly) he dropped into her studio at an unaccustomed hour almost immediately after lunch and heard gay voices and laughter. Why couldn't she work alone once in a while without that rabble around her?

Dallas in a grimy smock and the scuffed kid slippers was entertaining two truants from Chicago society—General Emile Goguet and Roelf Pool. They seemed to be enjoying themselves immensely. She introduced Dirk as casually as though their presence were a natural and expected thing—which it was. She had never mentioned them to him. Yet now: "This is Dirk Dejong—General Goguet. We were campaigners together in France, Roelf Pool. So were we, weren't we, Roelf?"

General Emile Goguet bowed formally, but his eyes were twinkling. He appeared to be having a very good time. Roelf Pool's dark face had lighted up with such a glow of surprise and pleasure as to transform it. He strode over to Dirk clasped his hand. "Dirk Dejong? Not—why, say, don't you know me? I'm Roelf Pool!"

"I ought to know you," said Dirk. "Oh, but I mean I— I knew you when you were a kid. You're Selma's Dirk. Aren't you? My Selma. I'm driving out to see her this afternoon. She's one of my reasons for being here. Why, I'm— He was laughing, talking excitedly, like a boy. Dallas, all agoin, was enjoying it immensely.

"They've run away," she explained to Dirk. "From the elaborate programme that was arranged for them this afternoon. I don't know where the French got their reputation for being polite. The General is a perfect boor, aren't you? And scared to death of women. He's the only French general in captivity who ever took the trouble to learn English."

General Goguet nodded violently and roared. "And you?" he said to Dirk in his careful and perfect English. "You, too, are an artist."

"No," Dirk said, "not an artist."

"What, then?"

"Why—uh—bonds. That is, the banking business. Bonds."

"Ah, yes," said general Goguet, politely. "Bonds. A very good thing, bonds. We French are very fond of them. We have great respect for American bonds, we French. He nodded and twinkled and turned away to Dallas.

"We're all going," announced Dallas, and made a dash for the stuffy little bedroom off the studio.

Well, this was a bit too informal. "Going where?" inquired Dirk. The General, too, appeared bewildered.

Roelf explained, delightedly. "It's a plot. We're all going to drive out to your mother's. You'll go, won't you? You simply must."

"Go?" now put in General Goguet. "Where is it that we go? I thought we stayed here, quietly. It is quiet here, and no reception committees."

His tone was wistful.

Roelf attempted to make it clear. "Mr. Dejong's mother is a farmer. You remember I told you all about her in the ship coming over. She was wonderful to me when I was a kid. She was the first person to tell me what beauty was—his Sam's magnificent. She raises vegetables."

"Ah! A farm? But yes! I, too, am a farmer. Well!" He shook Dirk's hand again. He appeared now for the first time to find him interesting.

"Of course I'll go. Does Mother know you're coming?" She had been hoping she'd see you but she thought you'd grown so grand—"

"Wait until I tell her about the day I landed in Paris with five francs in my pocket. No, she doesn't know we're coming, but she'll be there, won't she? I've a feeling she'll be there, exactly the same. She will, won't she?"

"She'll be there." It was early spring—the busiest of seasons on the farm.

VALLEY MILLS SEE SLIGHT CHANGE IN MARKET FOR PAPER

Manufacturers Confident That Improvement Soon Will Be Noticeable

Survey of the papermills of Appleton reveals very little change in the market situation during the last month. Several manufacturers are of the opinion it has strengthened somewhat, while others claim it is about holding its own. Jobbers are not stocking up and orders are very irregular and require prompt filling. Another noticeable thing is the big business firms that issue annual catalogues have not yet placed their orders, although a few have called for quotations.

There is a difference of opinion as to the cause of the dull market. A few say it is partially due to it being presidential campaign year. There is always uncertainty connected with elections and big business takes very few chances, they claim. All are looking forward, however, to an improved market condition which they do not believe will long be delayed. All the papermills of Appleton and Fox River valley are running light. They do this in two ways, by closing down some of their machines, or by closing their entire plants for a day or two at a time. There is a difference of opinion as to the better plan and each company follows out its own inclination. There is an abundant water supply and the pulp mills are all well equipped with wood.

Officers of the association are: President, Leonard Forester, Milwaukee; vice president, F. Nielson, Neenah; secretary-treasurer H. F. Moers, Racine; international executive board member, John C. MANY BEAUTIFUL GOWNS IN "FOR SALE"

In "For Sale," First National picture, which closes its engagement at the Elite tonight, Claire Windsor appears as a daughter of the Four Hundred which requires an extravagant display of gowns and finery. Clara West, costumed to Norma and Constance Talmadge, was engaged to design her gowns, and the result was a repertoire that will delight the eye of the feminine movie fan.

"SOLOMON IN SOCIETY" A STORY OF THE EAST SIDE RIVERSIDE AND FIFTH AVENUE

Poor people suddenly become prosperous are interestingly pictured in "Solomon in Society," the new photoplay starring Wm. H. Strauss at the New Bijou Theater today and Thursday with Brenda Moore featured in the cast. Mr. Strauss and Miss Moore play the Solomons, husband and wife, who achieve prosperity and move from New York's lower East Side to Riverside Drive. Their life before and after the change is intensely entertaining, replete with those touches which make a good picture more like life than any other form of art.

Everyone has known people whose prosperity has wrought a change in them. All of us watch for those changes in people who have ceased being poor to become rich, for the changes come in one way or another.

"THE LONE WOLF" POPULAR NOVEL MADE INTO FILM

In transforming Louis Joseph Vance's popular story of love, romance and adventure, "The Lone Wolf," into a thrilling photoplay, S. E. V. Taylor, the famous writer and director, had the leading roles portrayed by the popular film stars, Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt. For some time past these premier picture favorites have been appearing in Paramount productions individually and a master stroke was executed when they were obtained as co-stars of the Taylor production. The Lone Wolf will open a three days engagement at The Elite Theater tomorrow.

BANKS PAY WELL ON CITY'S DEPOSITS

Survey Shows Interest Rate on City Funds Is Above State Average

Appleton is one of the cities nine in Wisconsin which receive 3 per cent interest on their daily bank balances according to information in a bulletin which Charles J. Hanzel, mayor of Antigo, has published through the Municipal Information bureau of the University of Wisconsin Extension Division.

Through questionnaires sent to all cities in the state of more than 5,000 population, it was found that 34 receive interest on daily balances, and that the rate varies from 1 1/4 to 3 1/4 per cent. Four cities receive interest on their certificates of deposit, one receives interest on a savings account, and one receives no interest.

Superior and Waukesha receive interest at the rate of 1 1/4 per cent. Antigo, Ashland, Kenosha, Marinette, Marshfield, Merrill, Oshkosh, Racine, Two Rivers and Wausau receive interest at 2 per cent and Green Bay and Sheboygan at 2 1/4 per cent.

Cities receiving 2 1/2 per cent are Fond du Lac, La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee, Neenah, Portage, Stoughton, West Allis and Wisconsin Rapids. Those receiving 3 per cent are Appleton, Baraboo, Beaver Dam, De Pere, Janesville, Kaukauna, Manitowish, Stevens Point and Wauwatosa. Beloit receives 3 1/4 per cent, and Eau Claire and Menomonie 3 1/2 per cent. Menasha receives no interest.

Besides these 40 cities, there are 98 smaller cities and 550 villages in the state which are entitled to interest on their deposits.

Mr. Hantscher will talk on "Experiences in Handling County Bond Issues for Concrete Roads" at the Saturday session.

I Spent Fortunes to win beauty

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My mother was rich and ambitious. From my earliest years she urged me to enhance my beauty. She gave me her methods and formulas. Then she took me in a world-search for the never beauty helps.

Most people know the results. I became a famous beauty, and for many years I remained the rage. And now, after 40 years in the limelight, I still play a beauty's part, I still look a girl of 19.

Since then I have made many trips to France. I have consulted noted experts and famous beauties everywhere. I have spent fortunes to find all the latest discoveries. So I believe that I now have the greatest beauty helps in existence. And certainly my results seem to prove that. I have been induced to place these helps at every woman's call. Druggists and toilet counters everywhere supply them—the very helps I use. Thus every woman may obtain for a trifle the helps that cost me fortunes.

One is a liquid cleanser which I call my Facial Youth. Lucile Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, first told me what it did. Now leading beauty experts the world over are advising this great formula. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the grime, dead skin and clogging matter come out with it. A woman never knows what a clear skin means until she tries this Facial Youth.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth sells everywhere for 75 cents. Beauty experts charge up to $5 for the same effects.

I shall be glad to send you a small bottle free if you mail this coupon. It will bring you new concepts of what a clear skin means. My beauty book comes with it. Cut out the coupon now.

Many A Heart Been Made To Sink By A 10-Cent Ring

Just how much envy can be stirred up by one thin dime put into the proper channels has never been scientifically determined but the girls who sell the ten cent rings at the "Jewelry" counters of the Kresge and Woolworth stores here are convinced that more than one miss has had the satisfaction of stirring up her sisters to all-concealed jealousy by flashing a ten cent ring in a way that didn't leave much doubt what they meant. It was interesting to learn from the young women who sell the ten cent rings, pins, beads and other items of "jewelry" of the vast amount of deception mostly innocent, that is practiced by the purchasers of these articles.

Most of the cheap jewelry is purchased not for the value it represents but for the value the buyers want it to represent. Girls, hundreds of them, follow the prevailing fashions by buying at the ten cent counters and the demand for the cheap jewelry follows the trend of expensive ornaments as surely as night follows day.

When earrings were quite the thing for the well dressed woman, the demand for the ten cent variety was almost greater than the supply, but when the style changed the demand at the novelty stores suddenly ceased. The demand for novelties in the jewelry and department stores is immediately reflected at the 10-cent counters.

Many an alibi has been passed over the counters to the salesgirls by purchasers who believe they must justify the purchase of the 10-cent ring. "I might as well get one of these as an expensive one, I lose them all anyway," is the most frequent excuse that the girls hear. And the strange part of it is they expect the salesgirls to believe it.

Vast amounts of jewelry novelties are sold to out-of-town shoppers who feel they must take "presents" to the members of the family left at home. Quite often the effort is to obtain something that has the earmarks of value and no doubt a very considerable amount of jewelry worn in the nearby small towns was obtained from Appleton's 10-cent counters.

WINNEBAGO FORBIDS PARKING ON ROADS

Autolists who insist on using half the public highway for a repair shop every time they get a puncture or some other minor trouble, will find that in Winnebago-co., the stunt is punishable by fine or imprisonment, as the result of action taken by the board of supervisors.

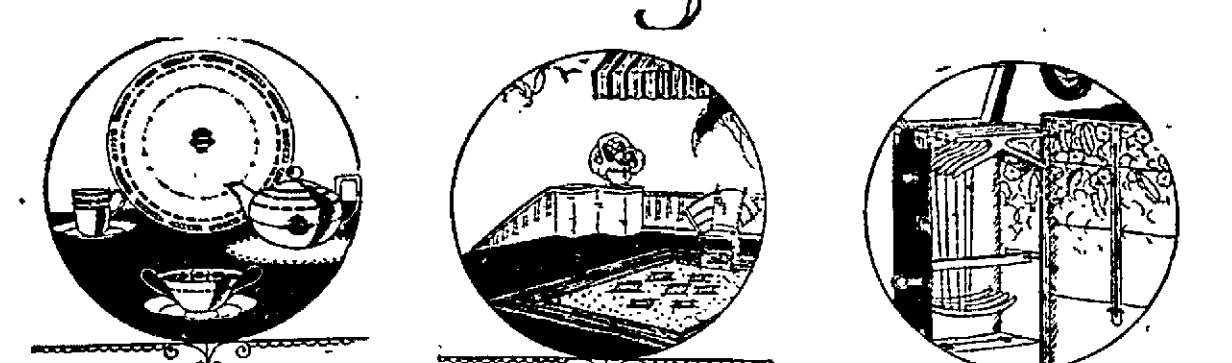

An ordinance putting teeth into the state law as far as the county is concerned, was passed by the supervisors. It provides for a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100 and in default of payment, by imprisonment in jail not less than 10 days or more than three months, for violations. Hereafter it will be unlawful to park a car along a main highway without leaving an 18 foot clearance to form a usable passageway for other vehicles. The ordinance specifies one exemption and that is "when making absolutely necessary repairs." The ordinance becomes effective at once.
